To Whom It May Concern

Mrs Kerryn Redpath is a respected and loved part of the Hillcrest Christian College staff team, working as part of our curriculum support program in Middle School. As a parent, an educator and concerned citizen, she has a message for young people at risk, especially those entering the dangerous world of substance abuse. She is able to speak from her own trials and tribulations in this field, giving convincing arguments as to why the best response is a big "NO!"

As a professional educator, she knows how much information is too much. Her boundaries are well defined. She is able to move deftly from personal experience to broad ethical frameworks, helping young people to make safe choices. While her recently published book makes it clear that a radiant sense of spirituality was part of her recovery, Kerryn is tactful when referring to her strong Christian faith. Because Kerryn is able to speak from personal experience, her warnings are convincing and her advice is solid.

Kerryn is able to relate well to young people of secondary school age, from years 7-12. I recommend Mrs Redpath as a presenter in this field because her message is delivered with professionalism, warmth and authority.

Yours sincerely,

Dr Ted Endacott

Chaplain
